

Companion Planting Chart

Companion planting is an organic method of maintaining a natural balance in your garden, aiding pollination and keeping pest numbers down. Common plant combinations include growing nasturtiums to deter aphids from attacking your beans, and planting alliums around carrots to ward off carrot root fly. Most companion plants are strongly scented and confuse pests looking for their host plant. Others attract beneficial insects, such as ladybirds and lacewings, which prey on aphids.

	Basil	Beans	Broccoli	Cabbage	Carrots	Cauliflower	Chives	Coriander	Corn	Cucumber	Dill	Garlic	Garlic Chives	Lavender	Leeks	Lettuce	Marigold	Melon	Mint	Nasturtium	Onion	Oregano	Parsley	Peas	Peppers	Rosemary	Sage	Spinach	Squash	Sunflower	Swiss Chard	Thyme	Tomatoes
Basil
Beans
Broccoli
Cabbage
Carrots
Cauliflower
Chives
Coriander
Corn
Cucumber
Dill
Garlic
Garlic Chives
Lavender
Leeks
Lettuce
Marigold
Melon
Mint
Nasturtium
Onion
Oregano
Parsley
Peas
Peppers
Rosemary
Sage
Spinach
Squash
Sunflower
Swiss Chard
Thyme
Tomatoes

Plants grow well together

Don't plant together

Generally good for the allotment

Helps with bug control